

Today, Management care systems can no longer be ignored. Organizations that have implemented or are considering implementing a care system such as ISO 9001, ISO 45001, OHSAS 18001, VCA... are automatically subject to internal audits.

Content:

An introduction to auditing management systems in which tasks, responsibilities and powers are defined, as well as: what are the objectives of your audit, how do you prepare.

The implementation of the internal audit and the reporting of the audit findings form the backbone of this to the point and practice-oriented training.

The principles of ISO 190011: 2018 are used for this.

The course provides space for interactive participation in examining the core issues of the various care systems.

Attention is also paid to exercises such as interviews and the art of objective assessment.

Our teacher, himself a professional trainer and lead auditor, will motivate and give you tools, tips and tricks about auditing management systems from his rich experience.

This day course will give you as an internal auditor a fresh and inspiring view of your task and help you to get even more return from your care system. An important objective is also to be well prepared for the external audits and to avoid non-conformities.
