

Anyone working on or in the vicinity of electrical installations may be exposed to specific dangers and risks. Employees who are in that situation must have a certificate of competence to be allowed to perform specific works or activities on the electrical installation or in the vicinity thereof.

Employees who are not technically trained and who must also perform activities or work on or near the electrical installation in certain circumstances. Given that the legislator states that the employer must appoint BA4 warned persons and that he must offer the necessary training, we developed a tailor-made training specifically aimed at this target group.

This training is offered in an open training of half a day or a training tailored to your organization and needs.
